

H.K. Belvedere @HKBelvedere

30 May · 21 tweets · HKBelvedere/status/1266777373887823872

False Flags/Agent provocateurs/covert operations - THREAD -

False flags are very commonly used military tactic to bring about a desired outcome, these attacks are done by posing as the rival military (or whatever group your attacking) To discredit their movement and give you-

The moral high ground to attack and achieve your original aim. Let's talk about a famous example - The Gulf Of Tonkin incident - In August of 1964, a US navy ship was allegedly attacked by North Vietnamese torpedo boats. The incident was faked and false radar images were used to Pretend a US navy ship came under attack, the president of the USA at the time, Lyndon B. Johnson used this false flag to justify to congress why the USA should be more involved in North Vietnam. They struggled for public support for the war prior to this.

This technique is also known as "Problem, reaction, solution" Create the problem, get the desired reaction, provide a solution AKA "the Hegelian dialectic" We also saw this very recently with the COVID 19 fear hype and the ongoing riots across the USA.

False flags have been around for longer than the 1960s - one of the earliest events was in 1788 in a war between Sweden and Russia, the Swedish made fake Russian uniforms and attacked an isolated Swedish outpost. This was the pretext for the war to begin in the first place.

Adolf Hitler used these tactics as an excuse to discredit the growing communist party in the Weimer Republic at the time, the nazi's got some mentally ill dude and dressed him in a commie outfit, set the Reichstag on fire and dumped the poor guy there to take the blame -

This event shocked the people in the republic and Hitler's popularity skyrocketed - he was then elected into power shortly after. Once he got into power, he carried out another false flag as a pretext to invade Poland - Its a very effective and common tactic - A form of

Projection, you project a horrible crime on to your enemies and blame them for it, so you can garner sympathy and public approval to achieve your main goal. Let's skip forward to more modern times - In my native UK - on the 7th of July 2005 aka 7/7 - 4 homemade bombs were detonated on 3 underground commuter trains and one double-decker bus - 52 people were killed and a further 700 injured - The attacks shocked the UK and the whole globe to its core. However, it later came out - a crises management company -

Were running a simulated exercise of EXACTLY the same event taking place, yes, this is also another very common tactic, run a training exercise that involves elements of the military, police force, emergency services, etc, this is done, as liability protection and to confuse the several thousand rank and file members of the military/emergency services, some think its a drill, some don't, it creates confusion. This is a calling card of a false flag. Look out for an "exercise" before or during these events -

The UK PM at the time Tony Blair had plummeted in the approval ratings due to the shambles of the Iraq war, public support was frailing, and a general election was due later that year, Blair steamrolled to victory in the end, despite earlier polls projecting his defeat.

In October 2019 The Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security in partnership with the World Economic Forum and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation hosted Event 201 - which simulated a global pandemic of a "coronavirus" which kills 65 million people.

Regardless if your a conspiracy crackpot or not, that is highly suspect by any rational thinking person standards. It's just too much of a coincidence for me personally. There is no such thing as a coincidence - everything is pre-planned.

Agent provocateurs are people who are used to carry out mini false flags to achieve their overall goal, we are currently seeing this in several cities in the USA right now, especially in Minneapolis, where its been reported none of the arrested rioters/looters are actually local People. They are being sent in by whoever is instigating the trouble, most sources claim it's being funded by a Mr. George Soros and his son Alexander, they fund the far-left groups to go and start carnage to aggravate the existing issues. Many military and police forces across the globe use agent provocateurs when they wish to make a peaceful protest violent, this gives the Police an excuse to go in team handed with full riot gear and take the moral high ground away from the peaceful activists.

Special forces such as the SAS & Delta force engage in these activities also during conflicts. During my time in the UK Military, I was informed of what appeared to be Iraqi insurgents, running off a UK chinook troop transporter aircraft in Iraq -

They were dressed as Iraqi soldiers and had the headgear on and AK-47 rifles, however upon closer inspection, the men were all white and had UK accents, this is the kind of covert operations the special forces do - they will dress up as the enemy and attack their own troops.

As an excuse to keep the conflict going, and secure more funding for themselves, it sounds mad, it sounds backward. It is. This world is a deeply twisted place, what actually goes on in the real world, is so far removed from what the general public believe. It would make your head spin if you actually were aware of this. I believe in this crazy year of 2020 and going forward, a lot more of this stuff will come to the light, and a lot of well-hidden secrets are going to be laid bare for the public to see. Were not in Kansas anymore -

END THREAD.

...