

H.K. Belvedere @HKBelvedere

25 Jun 20 · 18 tweets · HKBelvedere/status/1276247751320383489

How to deal with friends, family members, or anybody else in your life - after you wake up.

Ok, so you have awakened to the harsh realities of life, everything you ever knew, was a lie or a half-truth at best, a well-packaged story to keep you in a pre-conditioned box.

THREAD

I know the feeling, this happened to me, many moons ago, and my first instincts were to go and tell people around me.

"I must tell them the truth" lol big mistake, it almost ALWAYS backfires, and now, I will tell you why.

Say for example you are aged between 18-30 currently -

And you wish to speak to your mother or father about the recent information you stumbled upon.

Please remember these key facts

- They are under several decades of hardcore programming.
- You are their child, you're not meant to educate them
- They are attached to the system

(this is also known as Stockholm syndrome) People come to love their abusers after so long and will defend them to the death.

- For them to wake up, they would need to admit they have been scammed their whole life, very hard for most to admit to themselves.

- They don't care

You see folks, everybody has a path in life, a mission they feel they are on - if somebody is born to be a normie complier from cradle to grave - then sadly, that is their own choice, they probably enjoy fitting in. Let's be honest, it's a hard path being truly honest about life

This is not an easy road, it's a very lonely path, and it can lead to very dark alleys and places that VERY FEW will ever go.

I have taken my mind places that the VAST MAJORITY will never even consider.

The same goes for friends you may currently have, who are asleep.

They will start to drift away the more passionate and honest you become about life.

I lost countless "friends" the more absorbed in the quest for knowledge I became, you stop enjoying the wild nights out and parties the more you realize it's all a sad illusion.

I remember one time in like 2010, I had been awake for a few years, but I was still kicking around with a degenerate crew and going to house parties.

I still had fun and got wasted but gradually I just felt more and more like a fraud that was living a total lie - a tragic lie.

Shit like that loses its appeal after you get your head screwed on properly.

So get used to being a "weirdo" if you wish to carry on down this road, because you will be ostracised and fall away from a lot of people. Short/mid-term it's bad, but it pays off later down the line.

I used to tell people openly what would happen in the world today over a decade ago, I have predicted so many major events to people around me, I now have major credibility.

So it does pay to know what is going on and I admire people trying to help others.

Here are some tips on how to deal with this shit from a personal level

- NEVER be down about it (this is what the controllers feed on)
- Don't try and wake people up (let them wake up themselves)
- Express yourself through better mediums, swap rants for essays, write books/blogs
- Accumulate money - yes, having nice clothes and a good car/house will make people take your opinions more serious (shallow yes, but look at the world lol)
- Keep fit, don't become docile and addicted to drugs to cope, always maintain some kind of shape, (get respected more)
- Try and plant seeds with people, try and ask them questions rather than ram your ideas down their throats. (people tend to believe shit if they think they thought about it first, rather than being told)

-Keep a positive outlook, and have other outlets that are productive

Never lose hope/faith, you won't get anywhere in life wallowing about the woes of the world, or the heinous plans of the satanic elite, yes it's very scary stuff, but I think they will push too far, too soon, and it may blow up in their faces.

The recent events in the past few months have caused a mass awakening, people can now CLEARLY see, they are being lied to and manipulated beyond any doubt. Some will NEVER wake up, however, no matter how bad, but MANY will, as things get crazier.

So don't panic and run around trying to alert people.

Focus on being a good productive person, build your self up in all areas and get ready to be a LEADER when the time comes, because it's not far away folks. We are going to need strong, informed leaders who are ready to step in when the shit hits the fan.

It's not your job to shock them out the trance, they must do this alone and in their own time.

When they do, you will be waiting to guide them further once they accept what is actually happened to them first.

Remember the first matrix movie?

Neo had to wake himself up and follow the white rabbit, then take the red pill off his own back.

This is symbolic of everybody.

You can be their Morpheus.

END THREAD.

WAKE UP, NEO...
THE MATRIX HAS YOU...
FOLLOW THE WHITE RABBIT.

KNOCK, KNOCK, NEO.

Frans Hoorn

...